The pressure is on for marketing leaders and executives.

57%

of CMOs report
feeling pressured by the CEO to prove the value of marketing.

44%

of in-house marketers said “gaining respect from internal clients”
poses the greatest challenge moving forward.

A man in a suit is seen from behind, reaching out with his right hand towards a complex digital network of nodes and lines that appears to be floating in the air. The background is a dark, stylized city skyline with various skyscrapers. The overall theme is digital transformation and technology.

Digital transformation is changing the way
work gets done.

The workforce is shifting.

44% of the workforce

will be independent contractors by 2018.

43%

of full-time employees spend time working from home.

A grayscale photograph of three people in a meeting. An older man with a beard and glasses sits on the left, looking at a tablet. A woman with curly hair stands in the center, leaning over the table. A younger man with glasses and a beard sits on the right, pointing at the tablet. The scene is dimly lit with indoor plants in the background.

Productivity is flat.

Only 40%
of your time is spent on your primary job.

2/3
of organizations say their employees are overwhelmed.

Your team has less time for productive work.

Why are we working more, yet doing less?

- More meetings than ever, to be “collaborative”
- More email than ever, to be “collaborative” and non-confrontational
- More use of social media at work, and blending of work/non-work time
- I’m always working in some sense, and I’m never “working” in the classic sense

CMOs have the shortest shelf-life of any executive.

42 m

The average tenure for CMOs is just 42
months (2016).

3.5 y

Compared to 5.7 years
(CFO) or 7.2 years
(CEO).

“Failure to measure marketing’s impact on the business. This reason is a biggie. If you can’t justify your value—in the eyes of the executive suite—you have no value.”

— Christopher Ryan, President of Fusion Marketing Partners

Marketing and Sales are often in a power struggle

87% of the words sales and marketing use to describe each other are negative

45%

of businesses have a shared, company-wide definition of a lead

Leaders need to show that marketing is:

Crucial to the business

Deserving of a seat at the decision-making table

Doing more than creating swag

Able to execute with speed, creativity, and quality

Productive and cutting-edge

A valuable, strategic partner to other business units

Modern, forward thinking, and prepared for the future

Stacked with the right talent and skillsets

5 ways to rule the corporate jungle

1. Hire the right talent

Modern tech is changing talent needs

- AI and machine learning - will this affect jobs?
- Marketing spends more on tech than IT, but do they know what they have?

15%

of digital advertisers say they are using their technology
effectively today.

Marketers need new critical thinking and creativity skills.

Today's workplace requires skills that cannot be replicated by machines.

Q: In addition to technical business expertise, how important are the following skills to your organisation?
Q: How difficult, if at all, is it for your organisation to recruit people with these skills or characteristic?

77%

of CEOs are concerned about the lack of “availability of key skills” and how that threatens the business.

When robots do the day-to-day marketing work, the strategist becomes King.

2. Retain your best talent

Your teams are also under a lot of pressure

Work faster!

React faster!

Publish faster!

Get more done!

60%

of workers are either completely overwhelmed or barely hitting their deadlines.

Unmanageable
workloads create delays
and frustration.

Increased pressure & workloads has negative affects on employees

- Negative relationships
- Job instability
- Unhealthy stress

Unhealthy stress
and unhappy
employees leads to big losses.

34%

of lost productivity is caused by depression and stress disorders.

36%

of workers suffer from work-related stress
that costs U.S. companies $30 B a year.

Somebody is always too busy and somebody else is bored.

How to retain your top talent:

1. Make their happiness your business
2. Efficient resource management
3. Balance workloads
4. Agile mindset
5. Ensure there's time for creativity

APPROVALS

More than 1/3 of marketers say delayed approvals make work late twice a week or more.

How to help others trust in your team:

- Work to improve alignment between Sales and Marketing
- Focus on gaining alignment with other execs/leaders
- Help your team keep commitments
- Be transparent
- Have clear processes for working with other teams

Position marketing as a strategic partner

- Create a system for prioritizing/evaluating jobs and requests based on strategic value
- Say yes to the right things, and no to work that doesn't add value
- Consider an in-house agency model, with defined service offerings

4. Increase operational efficiency

Automating work is a top priority.

30%

of work can be automated to reclaim time for more creativity and innovation.
